Gigrin Prysg

Rhayader, Powys, mid-Wales. 11.8 acres of mature oak woodland with stunning views and a fast-flowing stream.
£34,000 (freehold)

Situated less than half a mile from the town of Rhayader, this classic oak woodland has a rich diversity of wildlife bounded by an attractive stream to the north.

Gigrin Prysg, Rhayader, Powys

Description

Gigrin Prysg is situated half a mile south of the busy market town of Rhayader, Powys. Conveniently located just off the A470 this attractive wood is situated in a scenic region of mid Wales, which has many local attractions and hiking routes. The nearby farm is a red kite feeding centre and numerous bird species frequent this lovely oak wood. Sightings include buzzard, sparrow hawk, cuckoo, treecreeper, lesser and greater spotted woodpecker and many others.

The property has a sunny westerly aspect, situated at the foot of Gwastedyn Hill. From the wood there are stunning far reaching views across Rhayader and towards the nearby Elan Valley. A small path heads from the access gate over the stream and through the wood. A strategically placed bench situated midway provides an ideal spot to enjoy attractive scenes of the River Wye and surrounding countryside.

This predominately mature sessile oak woodland shows signs of having been coppiced in the distant past. The woodland floor is easily traversed and sparsely adorned with holly, hazel and rowan. On higher ground to the east there is a large strip of open ground, with birch and sycamore on the fringes.

The woodland flora community includes scaly male fern, hard shield fern, bilberry, heather and a rich diversity of mosses and lichens such as wood bristle-moss, rusty feather-moss, and old man's beard lichen.

If It Were Mine

I would aim to manage this native woodland for conservation and wildlife, the open areas could warrant some new planting and installation of bird and bat boxes would enhance the biodiversity further.

Please remember some management operations require approval and/or a licence.
